AN IMMENSE AND LUXURIOUS HOTEL.

EVERY ACCOMMODATION FOR ITS GUESTS VARIOUS FEATURES OF THE EQUIPMENT. A city in itself is the Astoria, the latest addin to New-York's complement of hotels, which is almost ready for occupancy. Workmen are now engaged in putting the finishing touches to the thousand and one things not quite done, and the of furnishing the rooms, corridors and halls is being pushed with all speed. George C. Boldt, the proprietor, who has so successfully ready for its guests by November 4. The Astoria to be practically amalgamated with the Waldorf. There will be communication from one building to the other, and the two will have only one main office. Later on the Waldorf will be built up to A Tribune reporter yesterday inspected the hotel that is reaching completion, and it is safe to say that the public will be delighted with the results of Mr. Boldt's efforts when the Astoria is thrown open. The structure itself is a mighty one. It stands, as aimost everybody knows, at Fifth-ave, and Thirty-fourth-st., opposite the Manhattan Club, and it rises into the air for sixteen stories from its plot of ground, which is 20x250 feet. It is built in the style of the German renaissance, of one, marble and brick, and of fireproof materials, th a steel interior structure. Henry J. who was the architect of the Manhattan Waldorf hotels, also drew the plans for the Astoria. The hotel contains twenty-five public and about five hundred and fifty guest rooms, of about two hambers of corridors and there are vast atretches of corridors and sile. The main entrance is through the Thirty-outh-st. driveway and porte-coeners. On the and floor are the women's reception room, nich is finished in Siena marble and decorated in red, and is 50 feet on every side; the main corridor, which is nearly 300 feet long, and the in dining-room, which fronts on Fifth-ave., is Dixion feer in size, and is decorated in the style of the Italian renaissance and by panels painted by C. Y. Turner. This dining-room will be thrown into the Waldorf dining-room when the hotel is opened, and the two will make one room 200 feet long. On this floor, too, are the offices, the cafe, the bar, the reading-room and the garden court of paims, where meals will be served as in the Waldorf paim The garden court is three stories high, garden. The garden court is three stories high, eccorated in the Italian style, and a series of galliciles rules around the top of the garden, from which spectators may survey the diners below. The old Wadorf ballroom and care will be transformed into a reading-room and library.

On the librat floor is the new ballroom. It is $5.36 feet, $1.60 in the style of Louis Quatorze. It is commented in old ivory, and has two tiers of forty-two boxes for the accommodation of guests. From every one of these boxes an unobstructed view of the room is obtained. There is a movable stage that will seat one humbred musicans, and the floor will seat 1.08 people for a concert or a lecture. The walls are adorned with numerious panel paintings, some of which are by Will H. Low, and the ceiling shows two paintings, called "Music" and "The Dance," by Edwin H. Blashfield. The ballroom will have a private entrance and an elevator. On the same floor is the conservatory, which can be set apart and connected with the ballroom upon occasion. On the second floor among the most interesting rooms is a private suite of a dining-room, a drawing-room, a butter's pantry, hallway, three bedrooms, three maids' bedrooms and five bathrooms. Here too, is the dining-room for misses and children. All the rooms on the third and fourth floors were decorated by Prederick Crowninsheld; those on the fifth floor by Pottler and Stymus.

On the thirteenth and fourteenth floors are apartments especially designed for bachelors. The fourteenth floor is called the club floor, and several fourteenth floor are a billiand-room and a cooking-room that may be used by individuals or for classes. The great sun parlor is on the fifteenth floor. It has a suge skylight and many windows, with a large southern exposure. There will be kept here all the periodicals of importance and complete restaurant facilities. The room is designed to be run on the principle of a spa.

On the roof is a grand promenade, 20x200 feet, with a bandstand and trellises and quaint little mooks and corners, with the grandest view to be had in the city. Yonkers and the Orange Mountains and the ocean can be seen on a fair day. In winter a portion of the roof will be glassed over and fitted for promenade purposes.

Of all the rooms no two are decorated alike, and most of them have private baths. Each floor will be practically a hotel of itself. It will have a special corps of servants, cierks and pages, and separate pariors. There are eight electric passenger elevators, which work smoothly and silently. In short, the Astoria combines all the most modern improvements and advantages that care and experience and money can provide for the comfort and the luxury of guests. The guest has scarcely to turn his hand and he has at his command the postoffice, the telegraph, the telephone, the stable, the capingages, the messenger service, the doctor, the lawyer, the theatres, the picture galleries, the stock market and a hundred other things. He may live in retirement almost monastic, or he may give a grand hall, but whatever he does is done at the expense of almost no care or trouble to himself. All he has to do is to pay the bills and the resources of the city are his.

THOUGHT A POLICEMAN AN EASY VICTIM.

BERIOUS MISTAKE OF A MIDNIGHT ROBBER WHO FANCIED A DIAMOND PIN.

The comrades of Policeman Joseph O'Connor, who is attached to Inspector McLaughlin's office at Police Headquarters, declare that he must be a strange kind of policeman, indeed, to be mistaken for a "dend easy mark" by a highwayman. O'Connor was on his way home through Washington Equare soon after midnight last night when a poorly dressed fellow shambed up to him and said: "Hello married yet?"

O'Connor thought this was such a queer sort of greeting that he paused for a moment to look the fellow over. As he paused the shabby man's hand shot out, and, catching hold of the diamond pin which was glittering in O'Connor's tie, yanked it out. Then the fellow fied like a deer, all his stouchings gone.

The thief, according to his keeper, "almost threw a fit" when he discovered that his intended victim was a policeman. The diamond pin was found in his possession. In Jefferson Market Police Court vesterday he described himself as Joseph Cobi, of No. 29 St. Mark's Place. He was held in $500 bail for trial.

IRVING INSTITUTE'S PROSPERITY.

The Irving Institute has opened for its seventh season, under the management of Professor J. M. Furman. Under his progressive administration it has grown to be one of the prosperous home schools of the Hudson. The large increase in numbers has made necessary additional dormitory room, and work upon a gymnasium, with modern equipment, is to be begun at once.

A YEAR FOR STEALING JEWELRY. Alvah Van Dusen, the caterer in the boardinghouse at No. 59 West Seventeenth-st., who was charged with the theft of jewelry valued at $500 by one of the boarders, was sentenced to a year in the one of the boards as a several from the pris-pentientiary yesterday by Recorder Goff. The pris-oner's friend. Edward Cohlman, who wrote to the Recorder that if Van Dusen were convicted no honest man had any chance, was severely lectured and warned not to get himself into such trouble

AN INDIAN IN CONGRESS.

From The Kansas City Star.

"Remarkable progress has been made among the Indian tribes in the Territory since I visited them six years ago," remarked Congressman Charles Curtis yesterday. Mr. Curtis visited the Kansas, Osage and Pawnee Indians for the purpose of securing information that will be valuable to his committee in Congress—the House Committee to his committee in Congress—the House Committee to Indian Affairs—next winter. Incidentally, he visited some of his relatives in that country.

"The Indians," he said, "are learning to farm, though, of course, many of them rent their farms to white men. I found corn that will run as high as sixty-five bushel to the acre on farms cuitivated by Indians or halfbreeds.

"Those who rent their farms to white men make tood money. They get $2 an acre for the land cultivated, and usually reserve part of their farms for their own use.

cood money. They get $2 an acre for the land cultivated, and usually reserve part of their farms for their own use.

"In general, I found conditions among the Indians improving, and I am glad of it."

As is well known in Kansas, Curtis has Indian blood in his veins, and takes a lively interest in improving the condition of the Indians generally. He has an uncle and second cousin in the Indian Territory who are halfblood Indians, and are famous ranchmen. They are known as "Big Louis" and "Little Louis." Both are Papans, an old French family. "Big Louis" is a brother of the Congressman's mother, and a man of wealth and influence ameng his people. "Little Louis" is a cousin of "Big Louis." They are about the same age, and when they were boys one grew much faster than the other; hence their designation. "big" and "little." Finally "Big Louis" stopped growing, but "Little Louis" kept on, and now is the larger, and weighs two hundred and sixty pounds, while "Fig Louis" has a dencing pavillon, modelled after one he saw at an Eastern seaside resort. Every Friday night he gives a denne, and hundreds of people attend it. He has a lennonade and eiger stand in connection with it, and entertains as well as the best of the experts in this line.

BOOM IN THE SCHUYLKILL VALLEY.

NEW INDUSTRIES SPRINGING UP AND OLD

ONES INCREASING THEIR FACILITIES. vival of business new industries are springing up in the Schuylkill Valley, and from Philadelphia to Pottsville, a distance of over a hundred miles, there is renewed activity in all lines of trade. Yesterday morning at 9 o'clock the fires were lighted for the first time in the Reading Carwheel Works. The plant occupies four large buildings, and the work of getting the machinery in readiness has been go-ing on for some months. Everything is operated by electricity. Over two hundred carwheels will be turned out daily, and one hundred men will be employed. The president of the company is H. H. Hewett, who holds a similar office with the Union Car Company, of Depew, N. Y. The product is sent to many States and foreign countries.

Select Councilman H. I. Johnson purchased a lot 60x135 feet, on which a four-story building will be erected for the Boss Knitting Machine Works, to manufacture textile end other machinery. The firm now occupies rented quarters, with a limited number of employes, but in the new building two hundred hands will find employment. Alexander & Co., fur hat manufacturers, have rented another large factory building, and will run both, thus doubling their capacity, all due to the trade revival. In the opinion of this firm, prosperity has come to stay, and they look forward to

There are four or five large woollen mills section, and they are running full-handed and on full time. People are investing more money in American-made clothing, and these plants are catching the benefits of this trade. Jonathan G. Leinbach, one of the leading manufacturers, said to-day: "Our trade is 300 per cent larger than a year ago. I can't recollect when business was so year ago. I can't recollect when business was so good. It's due to returning prosperity."

The hosiery mills of this section are pushed with orders and are employing more hands than at any previous time in five years. For the first time they are obliged to advertise for employes, and all the plants of this city have over one thousand five hundred names on their payrolls. The same can be said of the cixar factories, and there are no longer any idle cixar-makers. The firms are advertising for good hands. The cixar factories of this city alone now employ over one thousand eight hundred hands.

Many New-York houses have their travelling agents making regular trips through the Schuykill Valley, which, outside of the city of Phitadelpnia, contains an industrial and agricultural population of over half a million, and they unite in saying that country merchants are giving larger orders than in four or five years. There is no better barometer by which to gauge business than the storekeepers in the small towns and boroughs, and this fall they have been sending in orders with a confidence that is most assuring, and a strong belief that prosperity has come with the Dingley Tariff bill. This county (Berks) has for several generations been known as fifteen and twenty years ago gave the party of Jefferson and Jackson 7.500 to $,000 majority. In the last few years the candidates have been well satisfied with 4.500, and the majority has fallen as low as 2,300 and 3,000.

INTERNATIONAL AMERICAN BANKS.

THE NEED OF POREIGN EXCHANGE FACILITIES DISCUSSED BY THE BOARD OF TRADE

AND TRANSPORTATION. Yesterday was the fourth day of the fall convetion held under the auspices of the New-York Board of Trade and Transportation at No. 203 Broadway. "International American Banks" was the subject of a lengthy paper read yesterday by William H. T. Hughes, of this city.

Secretary Frank S. Gardiner read a communication from William P. Wilson, director of the Philadelphia Museums, in which the latter said: "The establishment of American international banks and of American steamship lines are the two pressing needs which should be carried out by American interests at once, in order to facilitate the develinterests at once, in order to facilitate the development of internal commerce. We are blocked at every turn with the want of proper exchange between the United States and foreign countries with which we are attempting to form closer commercial relations. Within a week we have been compelled to solicit the good offices of a commercial house in New-York having money on deposit in a Central American bank, in order to forward money to that country. One is fortunate to find such facilities as this, but in many Latin-American countries we have no connections of this kind through which we can forward our money.

At the next session of the convention, on Tuesday afternoon. Occar S. Straus will read a paper on "The Reform of the United States Consular Service in the Interest of Commerce."

ITS ACTION IN CONDEMNING REAR TENEMENT-HOUSES AT THE VALUE OF THE MATERIAL

IN THEM UPSET BY THE COURT OF APPEALS The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court handed down a decision yesterday afternoon reversing the final order and judgment of the court below in the case of the Health Department against Frederick Dassori. A new trial of the sult is ordered.

This is one of the cases brought to test the right of the Health Board to destroy rear tenements. Justice Rumsey writes the opinion of the court, and Justices Patterson, Williams and O'Brien concur, Justice Parker not voting.

Justice Rumsey rehearses the history of the Justice Rumsey rehearses the listory of the case, showing that a referee declared that the premises in question, in the rear of Nos. 308, 319, 312 and 314 Mott-st., were unfit for human habitation. Commissioners of Appraisal were appointed, and they fixed the value of the buildings at merely their value as second-hand material.

The Justice adds: "The testimony was far from establishing that they were not capable of being establishing that they were that the nuisance could not be abated without their destruction. It was shown quite clearly that their condition was due largely to the filthy habits of the persons who inhabited them. It does not appear that after they had been vacated they could not have been put in proper condition."

they had been vacated they could not have been put in proper condition."

The opinion proceeds: "In this country, the right of one owner of property to have light and air for his buildings at the expense of another owner is not recognized except it comes to exist by express contract. All that the owner of any building can be called upon to do with regard to that building, if he desires to use it as a tenement-house, is to keep it in such a condition as the statute requires. If he does that he has complied with the law and his building is not a nulsance."

A SWINDLER SENT TO SING SING. Dwight Barnes, known as a manufacturers' agent, who had an office at No. 338 Broadway, was sentenced by Recorder Goff yesterday to two and a half years in Sing Sing for swindling. Barnes used these who answered give him money as security, obtaining sometimes as much as $20 or $500. A CLEVER LAWYER WHO LEFT A FLAW IN A WILL AND FIXED A GOOD THING

"Why do you submit to your father's outrageous treatment?" asked the eminent lawyer. "If I were in your place I should certainly break that will. I call it a downright shame that you should be cut off with a ouarter, and left to strive for yourself, while others roll in wealth.

"I know it is hard," said the black sheep of the family: "but somehow I don't feel as if there would be much use in my trying to get any of the money. It would only be a bother that would in all probability, come to nothing in the end."

"Come to nothing!" exclaimed the luminary. "Why, my boy, you can't lose if you go into it. I've travelled over a thousand miles to find you and tell you this, and I know what I'm talking about."

"How is it that you happen to be so positive."

FUN AT THE BOARD OF STREET OPENING

A SET OF PHOTOGRAPHS PAILS TO IMPRESS THE COMMISSIONERS AS MUCH AS EXPECTED.

A. E. Henschel, the secretary of the first Greater New-York Commission, appeared before the Board of Street Opening yesterday on behalf of the Willism B. Ogden estate, to get the Board to assess upon the city at large a part of the expense of opening Lind-ave., near Aqueduct-ave., which was recently opened by the city and the cost, as usual assessed entirely upon property-owners.

After telling the Board that the small stretch of street had been opened as an accommodation to the general public to make a short cut to the Highbridge railroad station, that it was already bur for any but foot traffic, Mr. Henschel submitted One of these showed the street with a big retain property, which is twenty or more feet above the street line, was not benefited by it. Another showed hole fully twenty-five feet deep on the other side of the road, and another retaining wall to hold the street up. In order to show at a glance the proportions of the steep walls a man was pictured in each, leaning against the wall. "Photographs can be made to exaggerate things you know," explained Mr. Henschel, "and this man is put there to show the relative size of the wall.

Is put there to show the relative size of the Wall.

Mayor Strong took the photographs and looked at them with interest, "Why, this is your picture, isn't it, Mr. Henschel?" he asked.

Mr. Henschel stands shout five feet, more or less, in his shoes, and, standing up, was not much tailer than the members of the Board seated. A smile spread over the Mayor's face, and then, the rest of the Board seeing the joke, there was a general laugh, which Mr. Henschel apparently did not aupreciate. Board finally decided to leave the question essment to a committee for investigation.

PRICES OF COAL BEING FORCED UP

THE OPERATORS ARE PRESSING THE RETAILERS. RATES HIGHER NOW THAN LAST TEAR,

A number of retail coal-dealers yesterday corrob-orated the story in The Tribune that coal would in all probability advance in price as soon as the first cold snap reaches the city. Some of the dealers declared that they believed coal would go up within a month's time, even if the weather doe not get colder. Coal is new considerably higher than it was this time last year. The large coal companies that supply the local retail dealers have been gradually drawing the reins tighter over the market for more than six weeks, until the retail dealers declare that they cannot much longer bear the strain, and that they, too, will have to raise prices. The poorer class of people, who buy their coal by the pail and the hundredweight, in the lens not get colder. Coal is now considerably higher coal by the pall and the hundredweight, in the tenement-nouse districts, already find coal dearer, as told in yesterday's Tribune. At the office of the South Street Coal Yard, Nos 281, 292 and 293 South-st., a reporter for The Tribune was told yesterday that coal would undoubtedly advance in price within a month. The yard does a wance in price within a month. The yard does a large business, both wholesale and retail, and the following is its present list of prices for retail lots: White ash, stove or nut, & a ton; egg, $4.75; red ash, all sizes, & & Franklin, $4.60.

C. Burmelster, manager of the yard, in speaking of the prices quoted; radi: These prices have prevailed since September 1. Before then coal was about 25 cents a ten cheaper, and it is now about that much higher than it was this time last year. I think there will be another advance of 25 cents within a month. But, of course, it all lies with the coal companies. If they don't raise prices any higher then we will make no further advance. Our business is extremely good just now.

The superintendent of Burns Brathers, who have large yards at Delanceyest, and the East River, and also an office at No. 25 Cortlandt-st., quoted the following prices: White ash, slove or nut, & egg. $1.75; red ash, stove or nut, & 75. Franklin, slove or nut, & 75. These sizes are the principal family grades.

The prices quoted by a number of uptown dealers were or nearly kinds of coal and grades. The prices quoted by a number of uptown dealers were practically the same. Dealers often vary signify in the prices of certain kinds of coal, and the figures depend somewhat on the size of the order and distance the coal has to be carted. The South Street Coal Yard has contracted to deliver all the coal wanted this winter by the Ladies Fuel and Aid Society for 44.75 a ton, none to be delivered in less than one-half-ton lots.

SNAKE AND SPIDER FIGHT.

Norristown dispatch to The Chicago Chroniele
The wheelwright shop of J. Hart, in this city, has been the scene of a duel to the death however a snake and a spider that is doubtless without a parallel in natural history. The reptile was of the garter speces, young and about five inches long. The insect had a black body about the same of a pea. When Mr. Hart opined up his shop he noticed a slight movement on the floor in the correct On close inspection be zaw that an inter-sing struggle was in progress.

The spider had placed a web about the snake's body as the latter lay basking in the sunshine and before it was aware the slik encircled its head. The reptile finally managed to free its body, but not its head, Mr. Hart then suspended the web on a stick, and the snake was held by the head in the net, but at every move the prisoner made one of the threads of the web broke.

The spider then set to work to strengthen the cison by winding an additional web about the stake's body and connecting it with the stick. When the snake had thus been secured the little insect cautiously approached the reptile's head.

Then the real fight commenced, and though the reptile was at great disadvantage it tried its best for an hour to bite the spider. We shape fank movement, obtained a safe hold on the under jaw of the snake, and it only took about four minutes for this Spidership to put His Snakeship out. The spider's poison acted quickly and caused death.

Special attention was given to the widely published charge that two children had received cruel treatment in the Watts de Peyster Home, in Tivoli, Dutchess County. It had been alleged that the children had been confined in a pigpen. The following statement regarding the charge was issued To the Press: As certain statements reflecting on the management of the Watts de Peyster Home at Tivoit, N. Y., have had wide circulation through the press, it is but just to the Woman's Home Mi sionary Society, which has this Home under its care, that the result of its investigation be made public. While it is true that an unwise method of public. While it is true that an unwise method of public. While it is true that an unwise method of punishment was pursued in the case of two persistently disobedient girls, it is also true that that punishment was not comparable to what would have been inflicted in a private home. Their physician asserts that the confinement was not long continued nor severs in its effects upon them, nor were they deprived of a good degree of liberty nor of their usual meals.

In justice to the Woman's Home Missionary Society will the press, from which we have received naught but kindness hitherto, give this statement, the result of close and full investigation on the part of the undersigned, as wide circulation as was given to the hasty and in great part mistaken accounts already published.

The report is signed Mrs. Clinton B. Fisk, president of the Woman's Home Missionary Society of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

It is true, it was said, that the children were confined in a part of the barn that was built for animals, but it was not used for such purpose, and is declared to have been perfectly clean. The children are said to play there habitually.

TABLET TO BE UNVEILED TO-DAY.

THE SONS OF THE REVOLUTION TO C RATE THE DEFEAT OF THE BRITISH AT HARLEM HEIGHTS.

York will this afternoon unveil an elaborate bronze tablet in commemoration of the Revolutionary victory of Harlem Heights. The tablet is on the Engineering Building of Columbia University, fac-ing the Boulevard, on the line of One-hundred-anding the Boulevard, on the line of One-nundred-and seventeenth-st. This building stands upon the battlefield. The tablet is the gift of the Sons of the Revolution to Columbia, and is one of the largest in the country. The sculptor, John E. Kelly, has represented the moment when Colonel Thomas Knewlton and Major Andrew Leitch attacked the Cank of the enemy and started them, on the re-represented the moment when Colonel Thomas Knewlion and Major Andrew Leitch attacked the flank of the enemy and started them on the retreat. Both were killed in the battle.

Over six hundred members of the Sons of the Revolution will participate in the unveiling, which will be preceded by an excursion up the Hudson, in the steamboat New-York, as far as Dobts Ferry, past many places identified with the Revolutionary War. On the return the party will land, at 2.30 oclock, at One-hundred-and-twenty-ninth-st., in which vicinity the battle began. The society will march with its six handsome flags down the Boulevard to Columbia University, where the unveiling ceremonies will take place. The parade will be headed by a regiment of the regular Army and the Od Guard, with their own and the 7th Regiment bands. A feature of the parade will be a company of members of the society and others who are descendants of men who fought in the action. They will march under a special Harlem Heights flag. Willard Clinton Fiske has been appointed grand marshal of the line; John Butterfield Holland, chief aid, and Colonel Henry Clarke Corbin, U. S. A. chairman of the Parade Committee.

At the tabler the exercises will consist of presentation addresses by Frederick S. Tallmadge, president of the society, and Professor William M. Sloane, of Columbia. President Seth Low will accept the lablet in behalf of the trustees of the University, and Mayor Strong, who will be one of the society's guest's, is a so expected to make an address.

THE ANTWERP SPIRE AND WELL. Editorial letter to The American Machinist.

Editorial letter to The American Machinist.

When I was an apprentice boy in an architect's office the story of an open-work stone spire, three hundred odd feet high, that had stood for hundreds of years, seemed a pretty tall story, as well as a very tall spire; and now after forty-five years or so, and after I have seen the wonders of the world, the open-work spire still stands here, defying the storms of the sea and the ravages of time, and as hard a story to believe now as then.

Then, too, as many years ago we read the story of the iron well, the work of a smith who wanted to marry an artist's daughter, and did this work to show that he, too, was an artist. No matter about the story, but the well still stands.

In front of the cathedral, and with a stone curb, is a well which is covered by an iron well-house or canopy, a work of art and entirely hand work in iron; not delicate in the way of the fine work at the Brussels exhibition, but clustering. tered Gothic columns, perhaps two inches in diameter altogether, with bases, beads and capi-

The columns look, a little way off, like such The columns look, a little way off, like such rolling-mill work as we might buy, stick in the sand and cast on bases and caps, but on inspection prove to be swaged and chipped and filed from solid wrought iron, with arches springing from column to column and across, with much delicate scroll and flower work, forming the resemblance of a roof. This, too, has been one of the sights of Antwerp for centuries.
